Re: Civil Action No. 07-2867 (NLH), MDL No. 1850

Dear Sir or Madam,

After receiving the "Summary of Proposed Settlement" for the pet food product liability, I see there is no mention of "emotional liability" reimbursement. I understand that the law is intentionally kept very cut and dried, however, in civil suits I believe there is provision for pain and suffering. This pet was a member of my family for over ten years. She was dear to me. A river of tears was shed over her loss and still are. I was deprived of many more years of her companionship and shouldn't that enter into this lawsuit?

I lived alone along with this sweet cat with whom I shared every day and night and she depended on me to keep her safe. I'm the one who fed her the poisoned food. Now I have to live with that for the rest of my life.

These companies were trying to save money by going to China for some of the ingredients for their products. Shame on them for not testing those ingredients. These animal's lives are over and we are left to grieve. The pain and horror of the whole episode will remain with us for a long time. Please consider our feelings in your final judgment.

Sincerely yours,

Nancy Bradley
